

1. Limitless (“None Like Him” by Jen Wilkin, ch.1)

LWO 2024 - January

1. What are some things that humans measure? Why are humans so interested in measuring things? For good? For bad? (see p17)

2. Think of some ways you measure yourself: Physically? Geographically? Intellectually? Personally? Relationtionally?

3. Acts 17:22-31 - What are some “limits” that Paul emphasizes about humans? What are some ways that the Athenians have “limited” God? What does Paul want them to know about the unlimited God?

4. Isaiah 40:12-15 - What are some ways that God has measured the limits of creation? What is Isaiah trying to teach us about our own perspective?

5. Psalm 145:3 - What does the psalm say is limitless about God? What is the proper response that the psalm is calling for from us?

6. Job 11:7-9 - Remembering the suffering of Job and the questions that confront him. What do you find is your own personal reaction to God’s unlimited nature when it comes to such questions? What can happen when humans try to search out such questions about God that Job is asking?

7. Psalm 89:5-9 - What are some examples that the Bible “compares” the LORD to? He is... He is like... How are these helpful? How are they limited?

8. Those attributes of God that are unlimited are known as “incommunicable.” However, not all characteristics of God are beyond our understanding. Those attributes that we can know and reflect are known as “communicable.” List the attributes of God below appropriately.

Omniscient, Just, Unlimited, Holy, Incomprehensible, Good, Self-sufficient, Eternal, Longsuffering, Wise, Faithful, Omnipresent, Loving, Omnipotent, Self-Existent, Merciful, Gracious

God Is (and We Can Be)

9. Which category is the source of human “rivalry” with God and which category is the opportunity for human “reflection” of God? Which do you tend to be drawn to more often?

10. Our overall study is focused on the Incommunicable Attributes (None Like Him) which all relate to God’s unlimited nature... Fill in the blanks

Today I learned that God is _____ , which also taught me that I am _____ . How will this impact my daily life?
